Navigating Risks in International Business Practical Tips for 2024

Various trade restrictions including sanctions are becoming ever more present due to the current shifting economic and political landscape. Foreign laws from USA, UK and Germany are having profound implications on cross-border trade and supply chain of any business entity, including SMEs. Local enforcement is also gaining traction.

How can companies ensure their compliance efforts are effectively reflected in contractual frameworks?

And how can your company leverage arbitration clauses to protect itself in any future disputes?

Prevention is better than a cure! Join our breakfast where Wolf Theiss experts and guest speakers share their lessons learned on how companies can construct contracts that not only define clear obligations but also incorporate various clauses aimed at steering clear of any potential risks.
